Daberi is a website, with a special focus on Blin language and culture. Blin is one of the nine Eritrean languages. The word daberi is a Blin term which means “get matured, progress, or develop”. Blin elders often use an expression of good wish in their blessing; “yna gnay legedini, yna behera daberini”. Which means; “let our youth grow up, and our adults get matured”. The wishes and dreams of the present Blin generation are the development and preservation of their language and other cultural heritage.

Thus, the mission of this website is to contribute its share for the preserving and developing of Blin language and culture. Inspired by this goal, the Blin Language Forum takes the initiative of embarking on this project.

The Blin Language Forum invites all interested people to contribute on subjects related to Blin language and culture, to the fulfillment of this project; namely, documenting and preserving every thing that has to do with Blin language, culture and history.

We consider Daberi to be a complimentary to already established projects dealing with the development of Blin language and culture.

Daberi, thus focuses on cultural and societal issues, that are vital to the even development of Eritrean languages and cultures. It is a non-political and non-religious website.
